

Ten-year insurance for photovoltaic panels

Overview

Yes, most homeowners insurance policies do cover solar panels, but the extent of coverage depends on several key factors including how they're installed, whether you own or lease them, and your specific policy terms. Coverage varies dramatically by installation type: Roof-mounted panels are typically covered under dwelling coverage with higher limits, while ground-mounted systems fall under “other structures” coverage limited to just 10% of your dwelling coverage—potentially leaving expensive systems. Are solar panels covered by homeowners insurance?

In most cases, yes, rooftop solar panels are protected by standard homeowners insurance because they're considered a permanent fixture of the home, much like your roof or siding. However, you may need a separate policy based on your system type. The cost of insurance for solar installation offers complete protection against an unexpected financial blow, which can be caused by partial or complete damage to the panel system, theft, or an accident directly related to the solar installation. No Standardization - With numerous panel manufacturers and system configurations, insurance criteria can vary greatly between providers.
